

recent years, 2021 was the first year since 1995 that the mature female red king crab abundance fell below the established threshold in the State of Alaska's harvest strategy to hold a directed fishery. As a result, the directed BBRKC fishery was closed for the 2021/22 season. To better understand the decline of BBRKC and scope potential management actions that are within the Council's authority, the Council has reviewed an analysis of trawl gear crab prohibited species catch limits (February 2021) and an emergency rule analysis to expand the Red King Crab Savings Area (RKCSA) in the Bering Sea (December 2021). In April 2022, the Council reviewed a discussion paper addressing an array of topics including red king crab biology, existing management and stock assessment boundaries, seafloor contact by pelagic trawl gear, and flexible spatial management tools used in other fisheries. At its April 2022 meeting, the Council both initiated this RFI and tasked Council and NMFS staff to produce an expanded discussion paper that is fully described in the April 9, 2022, motion linked below. That paper will consider annual or seasonal gear closures to the RKCSA, provide data on BBRKC mortality, identify information that would be needed to implement dynamic time/area closures that could protect mature female BBRKC, assess available information on groundfish predation on BBRKC, and analyze the impacts of limiting groundfish pot gear activity.

Request for Information

This notice requests comment on the motion put forward by the Council on April 9, 2022, which can be viewed at <https://tinyurl.com/D1BBRKCcouncilmotion4-9-22>. In particular, the Council wishes to hear from Bering Sea commercial fishery sectors that may cause BBRKC mortality, including both directed crab fishing and directed groundfish fishing where red king crab are encountered. See ADDRESSES for information on how to submit comments.

The scope of public comments is not limited, but questions that may be considered include:

1. Voluntary measures for implementation in 2023 and beyond to avoid BBRKC and reduce crab mortality in the non-directed fisheries;
2. Measures in the directed crab fishery to reduce discard mortality of BBRKC;
3. Description of research that would inform development of more flexible and effective spatial management measures; gear modifications to reduce impacts on the BBRKC stock, or to evaluate unobserved mortality in the trawl sector.

The Council will review comments submitted in response to this request for information at the October 2022 Council meeting, which is scheduled to begin on October 3, 2022. The schedule and agenda will be available prior to that meeting. All responses to this request for information will be posted and publicly available on the Council agenda for the October 2022 meeting.

Abstract: Under the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau is charged with researching, analyzing, and reporting on topics relating to the Bureau’s mission, including consumer behavior, consumer awareness, and developments in markets for consumer financial products and services. To improve its understanding of how consumers engage with financial markets, the Bureau has successfully used the Consumer Credit Panel (CCP), a proprietary sample dataset from one of the national credit reporting agencies, as a frame to survey people about their experiences in consumer credit markets. This series of surveys solicits information on the consumer’s experience related to household financial shocks, particularly shocks related to the economic effects of the COVID–19 pandemic, how households respond to those shocks, and the role of savings to help provide a financial buffer. Additional topics in this round of the survey include debt collection, healthcare, housing, and financial decision-making, attitudes, and perspectives. The survey will go to a new random sample of consumers from the CCP. All research under this collection will be related to the household balance sheet, and, thus, will be for general, formative, and informational research on consumer financial markets and consumers’ use of financial products and will not directly provide the basis for specific policymaking at the Bureau.

Request for Comments: The Bureau is publishing this notice and soliciting comments directed to the Office of management and Budget on: (a) Whether the collection of information is necessary for the proper performance of the functions of the Bureau, including whether the information will have practical utility; (b) The accuracy of the Bureau’s estimate of the burden of the collection of information, including the validity of the methods and the assumptions used; (c) Ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of the information to be collected; and (d) Ways to minimize the burden of the collection of information on respondents, including through the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology. Comments submitted in response to this notice will be reviewed by OMB as part of its review of this request. All comments will become a matter of public record.

Special Request for Comments: The proposed survey contains more questions than the Bureau intends to mail, the Bureau solicits comments on which questions provide the most value. Comments submitted in response to this notice will be submitted to OMB as part of its review of this request. All comments will become a matter of public record.

Anthony May,

Paperwork Reduction Act Officer, Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.
